Mule Breeding.

There is fashion and sentiment in stock raising, as in everything else. Ten years ago it was rare to see a young mule owing to an absurd sentiment prevailing that it was a mean thing to breed a mare to a jack. But the question of profit has been considered, this sentimental delicacy one $50, and an extra one $60 to $65. A ed and passed on. colt of the same age is worth-well he is worth all he will fetch, but that is not much, and indeed unless it is a colt of extraordinary promise, there can be said to be no price on him, until three or four years old. Those who raise mules commonly sell them at weaning time-mule feeders generally being large stock farmers. They purchase mostly in the fall, keep over two and sometimes three winters and sell in April and May, down along the Mississippi river, between Ohio and New Orleans. Prices have ranged like everything, high and low down, say from $125 to $250 each. Mules are generally kept in lots of one hundred or more in an open field in winter, are feed lavishly on shock, corn, sheaf oats, timothy, and clover and prairie hay, and have a winter pasture to run on. A mule like a diamond, is valuable according to size, and the aim of the feeders is to get it. To this end they have an extensive reign of meadow in summer, and are grainfed early and late in the season. Sometimes parties keep over a "bunch" three winters, and sell them the spring they are three years old. But it requires a good deal of reserve capital to do this, great corn and grass fields, and high, strong and hard fences. One can well say "hard" fences, for a hundred mules in an open lot, in cold weather, will eat up every day about as much pine board fence as two men would be willing to put up. There can scarcely be a finer sight than one hundred three year old mules just ready for market. Their manes and tails have been barbered with the greatest care and precision, they are as active as thoroughbred colts, as suple and playful as kittens, as wild as deer, and as inquisitive and mischievous as monkeys. Mule feeding is probably the most profitable of all branches of stock busi-

To Preserve Fruit Trees.

For the following, says the Robertson Register, we are indebted to Rev. Wm. Crawford and Mr. Samuel Long, of Robert-

If you would preserve and have your fruit trees bear well, peal bark from the tree, during the light of the moon, in June, leaving the new sap, or thick skin-which grows between the bark and wood. It should not be broke. It can be easily done by cutting through the bark, and raising it with the fingers and cutting around the tree, when the old bark may be pulled off without breaking. The sap immediately forms a new bark and possesses the tree of a new and vigorous life.

Mr. Crawford states that he tried this experiment on a Pear tree, which had never borne and was decaying. It is now a fine, healthy tree, and bears excellent

Practical Suggestions. A correspondent of the New England

Farmer writes as follows: Allow me, right here, to make a suggestion. In your caution to discountenance all humbugs and impositions, please be caucious how you condemn a good thing. Some things recommended by practical men may appear absurd at first sight, yet a note to a statement in the Tribune about putting fresh butter in animal's cars, to take a film from the opposite eye, and characterise it as "one of the barbarous methods which are sometimes resorted to in the treatment of cattle diseases."read the notice in the Tribune with much interest as I happened to know something of the remedy. I should say myself, considering the quantity there recommended, there was a little look of barbarism. But permit me to step right into the ring and defend the fresh butter remedy, only in a milder way. The remedy was used by my father, as long ago as I can remember .-Some thirty-five years ago, the pet house dog, old Prince, the pet of us youngsters, got his eye hurt in the woods by a stick switching into it. I remember it well, for I was then a lover of the dog, as most boys are, and we feared the old fellow would be blind. There being no fresh butter in the house, some cream was put into a bottle and shaken till it produced butter. A piece twice as large as a marrow-fat pea was partially melted and put into the ear CLOAKs & SHAWLs opposite the affected eye. In a few days the film disappeared to our great joy .-From that time, it became the universal Announcing candidates for State or District offi-ces ten dollars; county do five; always in advance. Happening to be in the company of a veterinary surgeon, I submitted the case to him. He said it was a serious injury, and he would take the case in hand for ten dollars. did not engage him, but decided to try the advance. We hope you will renew without delay. butter. I did so, and in a few days the eye was all right, A piece as large as a walnut is sufficient for an ox or a horse. I do not remember ever being under the necessity of giving the second dose. OIL AND MINING CO.

Indications of Oil. The territory of the company has been leased by careful and competent agents, who have spared no pains or expense to secure the best tracts in the various localities. Several very remarkable oit springs have been discovered, while gas jets, sulphur springs, salt licks and deposits of asphaltum, or so-lidified petroleum, are of frequent occurrence. The shale, also, and much of the limestone with which the company's lands abound, are completely satu-rated with oil, and when placed in the fire ignite and burn like the best cannel coal. In short, all the indications most relied upon by oil men in Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Kentucky, are found in abundance, while valuable deposits of iron, coal, lead, clay, etc., are known to exist on the territory

A special correspondent of the Pittsburg Oil News, writing for that journal recently, from Ten-

"The oil region of Tennessee embraces about 9,- 300 square miles, and the following counties or parts of counties: Robertson, Mongomery, Dickson, Hickman, Lewis, Lawrence, Wayne; the greater portions of Overton, Putnam, White, DoKalb, Warren, Coffee, Franklin, Perry, Humphries, Stewart, Macon, considerable portions of Jackson, Cannon, Lincoln, Giles, Harrin, Williamson, Cheatham, Sumner; and small portions of Smith, Van Buren, Grundy, Maury and Davidson.

"The indications of oil in this division are very much superior to those in any other portion of the State. In Overton and other counties adjoining the Burkesville region, in Kentucky, a considerable number of paying wells are already in operation.—
In Lincoln, Giles, Lawrence, Lewis, Hickman, etc., there has been no development yet, but parties who have visited the different sections of the State are of inion that these counties are unsurpassed in their ohness as oil territory. The limestone is often so appregnated with oil that a piece just broken off ill burn brightly, and the simile has the odor of troleum and will ignite like coal. The sandstone also often found completely saturated with oil. is also often found completely saturated with oil.— In addition to these indications, oil springs, tar was gathered in such quantities twenty or thirty years ago as to be put up in bottles and sold. Tar springs, although not as numerous as oil springs, are nevertheless occasionally found, there being several very remarkable ones both in Tennessee and Alabama. The explosions of retroleum gas in save-Alabama. The explosions of petroleum gas in several counties in Tennessee have frequently been so powerful as to throw large rocks from their positions and scriously alarm the people living in the vicinity. Salphur springs are found everywhere around the slopes and in the valleys. As all the oil yet obtained in Kentucky and Teunessee has had a strong sulphur smell, these springs are considered among the best of all the indications of oil. Salt springs are very numerous also, and in several

Of North Alabama the same correspondent writes as follows> "The geological formation of North Alabuma va-ries in no essential particulars from that of Middle Tennessee. Upon all the creeks that flow into the Cennessee, on either side, from where it enters the tate in Jackson county, to where it passes out, in Lauderdale, the sandstone, limestone and shale are found in alternate groups. "Upon all the creeks that flow into the Tennessee

Several very fine oil springs have been discovered, and upon a large number of streams oil has been found floating on the surface of the water. Upon one of the tributaries of Flint river in Madison county, it was formerly gathered in considerable quantities, and in digging a mill-race several years ago, the workmen used to cil their boots with the oil which exuded from the rocks. [The company has a lease of this land.] Tar springs, also, are sometimes found. One of the most noticeable of these is on Capp's creek, which flows into the Bushy Fork of Sipsey, in Lawrence county. The water runs out of a crevice in the limestone, and the tar, or bitumen, gathers on the surface. F. T. McLAURINE, clerk. "Very large d posits of asphaltum have in some instances been found. One is situated on the top of a hill three hundred feet high, in Lawrence county. Before the war, works had been erected for its distillation, and a large amount of oil shipped to New York. Gas springs are quite frequently seen, and sulphur springs are as numerous as they are in Mid-

"The prespect for oil in North Alabama, how-In 1838, a perty of workmen sinking an artesian well upon one of the tributaries of the Tombigbee River, struck oil at a depth of a little over six hun-drad feet, which flowed upwards of seven weeks, covering the surface of the river for a distance of more than fifty miles. It has often been the case, too, in sinking ordinary wells, that oil has come into them in such quantity as to render the water unfit for use. An instance of this kind occurred on the banks of the Muscle Shoals several years since.

and Second Creeks, in Landerdale county, Spring in Franklin, Town and Big Nance in Lawrence, Flint and Cotaco in Morgan, Limestone and Tyrone in Limestone, and Flint, Hurricane, etc., in Madison, the indications of oil are not exceeded by those of any portion of the great oil range within the States of Kentucky, Tennessee or Alabama. Territory having equally good indications can doubtless be found chewhere in the latter State, but its distance from transportation must, for the present, considerably lessen its value."

There is scarcely a locality above mentioned in There is scarcely a locality above mentioned in which the Company was not the first, or among the first, to lease oil lands; and it has, therefore, probably a larger amount of well selected territory than any Company in the country.

Prof. Safford's Geological Survey. A gerlogical survey of these lands has just been made by Prof. J. M. Safford, late State Geologist of Tennessee, who spent two months in their examination. His report, which, together with a carefully prepared map of the territory, will soon be completed and published for the information of stockholders and others interested, states that its geological formation is the same as that of Pennsylvania, Kentucky and Overton county, and that there can be no doubt whatever of the existence of petroleum throughout the entire region of country where it is located. Aside from Prof. Safford's high reputation as a geologist, the fact that his views with regard to the geology of this section, have been adopted by all the most eminent members of his profession in the country who have visited it, entitles his report to the very highest consideration.

Working Capital, Etc.

The Board of Directors have placed 5,000 shares of the stock in the market, to be sold at $10 00 per share, to raise a working capital; and in caze subscriptions in any county are sufficient to pay for putting down one or more wells, the amountso sub-scribed will be expended in that county. In this way particular localities will have all the benefit of the development and of the expenditure of the amount raised by them. This is a proposition, the Directors believe, which the inhabitants of every Directors believe, which the inhabitants of every county where the Company have lands, who desire to know their value for mining purposes, should be sure to avail themselves of.

The Company already have four oil boring machines in Tennesses, and one in Alabama, ready to commence operations, and hope to have at least five wells going down in a very short time. Their territory also is so great and varied in extent as to secure for them not only the benefit of their own development, but of that of the numerous other companies whose lands are situated in the vicinity of panies whose lands are situated in the vicinity of their own. Of these, quite a large number are put-ting down wells in the immediate vicinity of lands of the Company, and if successful this fact alone will doubtless make its stock worth nearer per than its present subscription price. Superinten-dents for the various projected wells have also been Transportation, Etc.

The lands of the Company, except in some eases where the surface indications have been unusually promising, have been selected with particular reference to their nearness to transportation, either by water or rail, a fact of very great importance, in estimating the value of its property. Parties owning lands having oil or miceral indi-cations of special excellence, are invited to communicate with any officer or director of the Company. Efficient and reliable agents are wanted in the various localities, to procure subscriptions to the stock, to whom a reasonable compensation will be
